After

The redesigned interface features a header with "GLOBAL COVID-19 FEED" and "BETA" status, with "Powered by Teqbahn" and its tagline "A Different Journey for a Different Future". The world map and statistics remain the same. The search bar is now labeled "SEARCH NEWS". The news card layout is updated, with each news item including a thumbnail image (e.g., Asia Times logo, BBC News logo, CNN logo) and a timestamp (e.g., "March 10th, 2021 | 3:25 AM"). The news cards are now arranged in a single column.

Covid-19: Too early to book a foreign holiday, Grant Shapps says

It is still too early to book foreign summer holidays, the transport secretary has said, despite countries saying they hope to welcome vaccinated British tourists from May.

Grant Shapps said there were "lots of questions" to answer about "how safe it will be in June to travel".

People in England could be allowed to go on holiday abroad from 17 May at the earliest, according to current plans.

A Greek minister said his country hoped to welcome visitors from mid-May.

Cyprus and Portugal are also among the countries keen to welcome UK visitors.

Under the current rules, foreign travel from the UK is banned apart from for exceptional reasons.

While 17 May has been marked as the date that rule could change - the decision is subject to a review closer to the time.

According to the latest figures, another 190 people have died in the UK within 28 days of a positive coronavirus test, and a further 5,926 positive cases have been reported.

Asked on BBC Radio 4's Today programme whether it was too early to book a summer holiday, Mr Shapps said: "Yes."

He added: "We have said it will remain illegal to travel internationally until at least 17 May - that's an at-the-earliest date."

Mr Shapps said people should look towards 12 April, when he would publish a global travel taskforce report, and said the government was weighing up not only the "extraordinary" UK vaccination rollout but also other countries' vaccine programmes.

"So there are lots of questions, the answer to which we simply don't know yet, about how safe it will be in June to travel around," he said.

Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland have not set a date for the start of international travel.
